

Dana-Farber Cancer Institute

Adrienne Kolk, MSN, FNP-C, AOCN

Nurse Practitioner, Gastrointestinal Cancer Center

Biography

Adrienne started her nursing career in 2007 as a nursing aide at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center while working on her BSN at Salve Regina University. After graduating in 2009, she worked on the inpatient oncology unit as an RN for six years. During her time as an RN, she went back to school for her MSN at Regis College to become a nurse practitioner. From 2015-2019, Adrienne worked as an outpatient gastrointestinal oncology nurse practitioner collaborating with Dr. Diane Savarese and Dr. Benjamin Schlechter. In January 2020, her career brought her to Dana-Farber Cancer Institute where she continues to enjoy collaborating and managing patients with gastrointestinal malignancies.

Background

Education

Salve Regina University, Newport RI
Bachelor of Science in Nursing, 2009

Regis College, Weston, MA
Master of Science in Nursing Family Nurse Practitioner, 2015

Board Certification

American Academy of Nurse Practitioners, Family Nurse Practitioner
Oncology Nursing Certification Corporation, Advanced Certified Oncology Nurse Practitioner