

Dana-Farber
Cancer Institute

Jaclyn Hatch, RN, BSN

Oncology Nurse Navigator, Gastrointestinal Cancer Center

Biography

Jaclyn earned her Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree from Quinnipiac University. She started her nursing career on the inpatient adult bone marrow transplant unit at Brigham and Women's Hospital. She worked closely with hematological malignancies and found a particular interest in palliative care. She completed the End of Life Nursing Education Consortium Certification and attended the Women's Cancer Conference. After seven years at the bedside, she transitioned to the outpatient setting. In 2015, Jaclyn joined the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute Gastrointestinal team and has enjoyed patient education and care coordination.

Background

Education

Quinnipiac University, Hamden, CT
Bachelor of Science in Nursing