

Dana-Farber
Cancer Institute

Jessica Driscoll, DNP, ANP-BC

Nurse Director of Ambulatory Hematologic and Gastrointestinal Malignancies

Biography

Jessica Driscoll, DNP, ANP-BC, is the Nurse Director of Ambulatory Hematologic and GI Malignancies at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. Prior to joining Dana-Farber in 2018, she spent almost 13 years in the Cancer Center at Massachusetts General Hospital in a variety of capacities. She started as an inpatient Hematology/Oncology/Bone Marrow Transplant nurse then became an outpatient Bone Marrow Transplant Nurse Practitioner where she practiced for 8 years. Upon completing her Doctorate of Nursing Practice degree in 2016, she served as Interim Co-Director of Nursing for the Cancer Center. Dr. Driscoll is a qualitative researcher and has presented her work at the American Society for Blood and Marrow Transplant multiple times. Her research interests include survivorship and coping with chronic graft versus host disease. She enjoys golfing and 6 AM hot yoga.

Background

Education

Simmons University, Boston, MA

Doctor of Nursing Practice

Master of Science in Nursing, Adult Nurse Practitioner,

Assumption College, Worcester, MA

Bachelor of Arts with a major in Biology and certificate in Gerontology