

Dana-Farber
Cancer Institute

Kathleen Boyle, DScPAS, PA-C

Physician Assistant, Gastrointestinal Cancer Center

Biography

Kathleen Boyle holds a Bachelor of Science in Biology and a Bachelor of Science in Environmental Science from Fordham University, a Master of Science in Medical Studies from Yale University School of Medicine, and a Doctor of Science in Physician Assistant Studies from Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences University. She is NCCPA board certified PA since 2012. Prior to joining DFCI, she was an Emergency Department PA at Yale-New Haven Hospital and a Thoracic Oncology Service PA at New York-Presbyterian Hospital Columbia Medical Center. In 2013 she joined the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. At DFCI she has held roles in the inpatient medical oncology unit, the thoracic medical and surgical oncology divisions, and the gastrointestinal medical oncology division.

Background

Education

Fordham University, Bronx, NY

Bachelor of Science in Biology, 2006

Bachelor of Science in Environmental Science, 2006

Yale University, New Haven, CT

Master of Medical Science, 2012

Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Health Science, Boston, MA

Doctor of Science in Physician Assistant Studies, 2022