

Dana-Farber Cancer Institute

Molly Nestor, MSN, FNP-C, AOCNP
Nurse Practitioner

Biography

Molly graduated from Bowdoin College, where she majored in Biochemistry and Sociology. She then worked in clinical research at the Brigham and Women's Hospital Crohn's and Colitis Center before pursuing her Master of Science in Nursing at the Yale School of Nursing. Upon graduation, she began her career as a Nurse Practitioner at the Seattle Cancer Care Alliance, the outpatient clinical partner of the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center and the University of Washington. There she cared for patients in Colorectal Surgery and Gastrointestinal Medical Oncology. She returned to her Massachusetts roots in 2018, joining the Dana-Farber Gastrointestinal Cancer Center and continuing her work as an Oncology Nurse Practitioner caring for patients with gastrointestinal malignancies.

When not at the hospital, Molly enjoys spending time with family and friends, running, hiking, and playing pick-up softball.

Background

Education

Yale University, New Haven, CT
Master of Science in Nursing

Bowdoin College, Brunswick, ME
Bachelor of Arts

Board Certifications

American Academy of Nurse Practitioners, Family Nurse Practitioner
Oncology Nursing Certification Corporation, Advanced Certified Oncology Nurse Practitioner